

Council Decides by Narrow Majority to Make Agreements With Civic Employees Unions

Aldermen Favoring By-Laws to Govern Conditions of Employment—Some Old Questions Regarding Street Railway Are Again Ventilated

The city council at its adjourned meeting on Wednesday afternoon, decided by a very narrow margin of one vote, that it would enter into a contract with the city of Chicago and its unions and would not have bylaws to govern conditions of employment, but would be governed by existing ordinances and similar to those now in effect in connection with certain aspects of the department.

There was considerable discussion of the merits of the proposed contract and at times the exchanges became more or less heated. "I'm running business at home," took up the question of the agreements with the civic employees, Alderman Kinney pointing out that before anything was done he had asked whether they meant to deal with the employees by means of agreements or by laws governing the conduct of employees. "I'm not," Kinney noted, "that council accept the agreements as drawn up by the commissioners and the representatives of the employees. I'm not going to the armories on the occasion of the reception to the 49th battalion and also ask all citizens to come and see. I've asked that a letter of thanks should be sent to them."

Ald Martin seconded the motion and the council adjourned.

At the request of Aid. Eldale a report from the finance committee dealing with the question of the status of the city's debt was read. The auditor was read the finance committee's reporting progress in the matter.

Ald. Milton Martin said that such a change would be made, but the mayor said that it had happened in the case of the street railway superintendent.

Ald. Milton Martin's challenge to the mayor's proposed amendment, in support of what he had stated, and the subject then dropped.

The 42nd Battalion, affiliated with the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, Montreal, which arrived from overseas in Montreal on Tuesday, March 10, was sent to the front by the Canadian Corps for hard fighting, second to none among the kilted battalions under the command of Lieut.-General Currie.

Major Corps, Sanctuary Wood, Hogue, were its real baptism of fire. The 42nd Battalion fought at Vimy, Gueben, and Zelleren Trench—the 42nd was in some of the bloodiest fighting of the war. It was one of the first one of the jumping off units and reached its first objective in half an hour. The German General Staff, von Schandeanne added more laurels to the battalion's record, some of the most famous being taken at Vimy, where it was the first to take the summit of Hill 700. In the action of the 9th April, 1917, the Canadian Corps to Lens and when Amiens came last year, the 42nd held in leash for a short time broke through the left on the third day and completed the discomfiture of the Germans in

While on a rest tour on April 22, 1942, the 2nd came under attack by the battalion and paid the smart looking killites a special compliment, by saying that they were the best looking body of troops he had seen. On June 2, 1942, in the German attack on the 2nd, the 2nd was hit hard. The 2nd was hit by the Hunns came through with flamme-throwers streaming fire and the 2nd's defenders were forced to defend the line less heavily, but with the 49th and Princess Pat they maintained the reserve line intact. The 2nd was hit by the Hunns in the attacks at Sanctuary Wood and Hooge. The Montreal Highlanders had their hand to hand fighting. Two companies which had been hurried up to the 2nd were hit hard. On June 2nd came through terrific shell fire and arrived just in time to rally the 2nd. The 2nd was hit hard. The report of the divisional commander mentions that half an hour's delay in the attack would have meant the annihilation of the rest of the battalion. The losses of the battalion at the 2nd were 100 killed, 100 wounded and fifty per cent of the officers.

The 42nd Infantry Division moved northward to Arzas where raiding was carried out extensively, in which the 42nd participated. After Arzas came Vignacourt. The 42nd was to the right of Hill 145. The battalion reached this half an hour after jumping off, although the coast was still under fire. Owing to the heavy sleet which was falling, in less than three hours they were able to report that they had killed 900 Germans, captured 100 prisoners had fallen to the killed men from Montiel than they had casualties. All through the day the 42nd was in contact with the enemy. They were from Hill 145, but never flinching until that evening the Fourth Division took the position that was

In October, 1917, the 42nd Battalion found itself with its division at Passchendaele. The Highlanders were one of the attacking units to the North East and after heavy fighting over the muddest ground they had yet encountered, they were able to gain the main German trench just outside the shattered village. It was the objective that was needed for the phase of the attack and on their relief by men of the First Division the can-

In November, the battalion was broken up and the lance corporals were sent to the front with the rest of the Corps. It faded into oblivion, that period when the Canadians underwent the open fighting of the war, when they were the best of them in such good stead. The day before the attack at Amiens on August 8th, 1918, the Highlanders were sent to the front as part of the First Division, which was to have the honor of jumping off. On the third day of the attack, when victory was in sight, the Highlanders were following up to make it a rout for the Germans, the Third Division with it. The 42nd, went into the attack at the head of the column, and was met and the thrust in which the Highlanders took part after this was the spearhead of the great battle, piercing the German's organized line for several miles.

Then came the breaking of the Droo-Queant section of the Hindenburg system and again the Highlanders were in the thick of it. Pett Pontaline and St. Oles, two little villages strongly held by the Hunns, fell to their charges. On October last the Highlanders first took the town of Cambrai and to the Highlanders went the honor of being the first troops in that town. In the street fighting that followed the Hunns were driven out and came through with light casualties. The battalion was in the heavy fighting at Tilley and the plateau between the two towns. It was up scores of machine gun nests in their advance with the whippet tanks.

In what might be called the leisurely phase of the battle between the Highlanders and the Hunns, the Highlanders did not have in no particularly spectacular fighting and when the armistice was signed they were still forward again at full strength to hold their place on the Rhine.

FARM IMPLEMENT PRICES AND DUTIES

THERE is a wide difference between statements of Western grain growers and the manufacturers relative to the prices of Canadian-made agricultural machinery and comparable implements produced in the United States. The Canadian Reconstruction Association has made an investigation of such prices at a number of points in Western Canada and at places directly south in the Northwestern States.

As a result of the inquiry the Association submits the following comparisons, believing them to be accurate. The quotations are average, retail, one-payment prices in the United States, for 1919 Spring delivery, of a standard 7-foot binder equipped with sheaf carrier and fore carriage, as compared with the highest, retail, one-payment prices in the districts mentioned in Canada. The prices are for implements which compete regularly in foreign markets, where the Canadian-made binder is said to sell for even a higher price than the binders made in the United States.

Comparison No. 1	Comparison No. 2	Comparison No. 3	Comparison No. 4
Grand Forks, North Dakota..... $246	Williston, North Dakota..... $280	Havre, Montana..... $290	Great Falls, Montana..... $300
Any point in Manitoba, as far north as Dauphin and west to the border of Saskatchewan $248	Regina, Moose Jaw or any point in Southern Saskatchewan to West of Moose..... $259	Maple Creek, or any other point in Southwestern Saskatchewan..... $261	Lethbridge, Calgary, Edmonton or any point in Southern Alberta..... $266

The prices quoted are much higher than were prices before the war, but the comparative figures show a very similar relation to those quoted by Sir Thomas White in the Canadian Parliament in April, 1914, as a result of an enquiry made under his direction by Mr. Costello, an official of the Canadian Customs Department, who was sent to Western Canada and the Northwestern States expressly to secure information as to prices and the effect of the tariff duties on agricultural implements.

The figures given above and those reported by Mr. Costello seem to show that the Canadian price is not, as sometimes stated, the United States price plus the duty. In some cases, agriculturists in Manitoba appear to pay more than is paid by the farmers at points directly south in the United States, but such does not seem to be true of farmers generally in Western Canada.

The Canadian manufacturers claim that farmers west of Manitoba buy binders at lower prices than do farmers at places directly south in the United States and, indeed, that Canadian agriculturists generally purchase farm machinery more cheaply than do the farmers in any other country in the world.

For comparison, the binder has been considered because it is a fairly standardized implement. In the case of drills, mowers and certain other farm machinery there is a wide difference in the products of various manufacturers, and price comparisons are apt to be misleading. Comparison is possible, however, between the prices of wagons. The inquiry made by the Canadian Reconstruction Association, and supported by actual signed orders, seems to show that a purchaser in Southern Manitoba pays $163.50 (one payment, retail price) for a 3½-inch arm, 3-inch tire, Canadian-made wagon, complete with seat and box, while a farmer at Devil's Lake, North Dakota, has to pay for a comparable wagon $170.00. The price at Havre, Montana, appears to be $185.00, as compared with $168.00 at Maple Creek, or any other point in Southwestern Saskatchewan.

The executives of Canadian implement companies state that they have not at any time sold farm machinery at a lower price in the foreign than in the domestic market, under similar conditions and when the difference in cost of transportation is taken into account. On that proportion of their output which is sold abroad, Canadian manufacturers are entitled to a rebate of 99 per cent. of the duty which they have paid on materials entering into their products. It is claimed that the United States and Canada are the lowest-cost producers of agricultural machinery in the world. These two countries have an advantage over domestic producers in foreign markets. Competition is less keen and prices are higher than are prices in Canada. Government reports show that during the war overseas prices in Great Britain, France, Australia, Argentina and elsewhere have been much higher than those obtaining in this country.

The tariff on agricultural implements yields about three million dollars revenue annually to the Dominion Treasury—income which should have to be made up in some other way if the duties were removed. Besides, there is the revenue from customs duty paid by the farm implement manufacturers on imported machinery and materials. In addition, the farm implement industry in Canada, through taxes and otherwise, helps to support provincial and municipal services and provides a considerable market for the products of a large number of other Canadian interests. The tariff duty—in the case of binders, mowers and reapers now only 12½ per cent. of the Customs valuation, or in reality not more than 10 per cent. of the retail selling price—helps to retain the market for Canadian manufacturers, enabling them to produce in larger quantities and at lower unit cost. The annual wage and salaries bill of the agricultural implement industry to Canadian workers is about $20,000,000 and close to 100,000 persons are dependent upon this income for their livelihood. Through other local industries, from whom the agricultural implement companies purchase materials of various kinds, the interests of many thousands of additional workers are involved.

If, by abandonment of the Canadian tariff duties, the United States manufacturers of farm machinery were enabled to capture a larger part of the Dominion market, it is said that serious harm might be done to the Canadian industry and the foreign manufacturers might then exploit the Canadian grain growers by charging higher prices, on account of there being little or no competition from domestic producers.

Before removing or lowering the duty, it is desirable that Parliament and the public should have definite information as to whether or not the present duty more than compensates for the higher costs resulting from the geographical situation and other factors over which the Canadian manufacturers of farm machinery have no control. They also should know whether the Canadian farmer could obtain any lasting advantage from removal or modification of the present duty. Who pays the duty? Does the tariff help to retain the Canadian market for Canadian-made implements, thus contributing to a lower unit cost of production and at the same time providing employment at good wages for Canadian workers and a market for the products of other Canadian industries? Have the manufacturers of implements taken any undue advantage of the tariff to charge excessive prices? These questions should be studied and answered. Until they can be answered and until the tariff problem can be considered in its entirety, there is reason to suggest that the demand for removal of the duties on agricultural implements be deferred.

Nature Notes

The birds of North America may be divided into three classes—
1—Permanent residents.
2—Winter residents.
3—Migratory birds.
The permanent residents, at the same time, are those birds which are with us all the year and include the following: Canada Jay, Blue Jay, Sharp-shinned Grouse, Ruffed Grouse, Bald Eagle, Golden Eagle, Chickadee, Horned Owl, Great Grey Owl, Long-eared Owl, Screech Owl, Northern Saw-whet Owl, Barred Owl, Northern Woodpecker, English Sparrow.

The winter residents are with us only during the first cold spell and remaining until spring, then returning to their native lands to breed. They include the following: Downy Owl, Snow Bunting, Redpoll, American Three-toed Woodpecker, Arctic Three-toed Woodpecker, American Raven, Bohemian Waxwing, Pine Grosbeak, Evening Grosbeak, Gyrfalcon, Northern Shrike.

The true migratory birds are far more numerous, including about two hundred and twenty-five species, and will be dealt with as the season advances.
The Tree Sparrow is the first of the migratory birds to return in spring. They are usually found first on or near the ground. It is at this time of year that it develops more duck, or the Edmonton district in April 1911, the earliest date of arrival March 21, 1912; latest date of arrival, April 24, 1917.

The American Crow—This bird arrives long before the Tree Sparrow, the ten-year average being March 25th, 1916; latest date of arrival, March 19th, 1917. The Crow is one of the most destructive birds. It is a pest of the spruce and I feel quite certain that it develops more duck, or the Edmonton district in April 1911, the earliest date of arrival March 21, 1918 were destroyed by crows. I do not advocate that crows should be exterminated but certainly in favor of thinning them out materially.

The Mountain Bluebird is also an early arrival, reaching this point on a ten-year average on April 11th; earliest date, March 17, 1916; latest date, April 14th, 1918.
Lethbridge, April 2—Pursuing to general today in many parts of Southern Alberta. Seeding will begin next week.

Winnipeg, Man., April 1—At the annual meeting of the Great War Veterans' Association held here today, an urgent resolution was passed asking the government to examine all unnaturalized citizens as to their desirability as citizens, and if found undesirable they be deported.
